September's Greene King Leisure Spend Tracker revealed that predicted Christmas spending for 2016 is set to exceed last year's festive season which is great news for the catering and hospitality industry.

Over a quarter (27%) of British adults intend to spend more this Christmas compared to last year and 60% say their spending will be the same as last Christmas.

Fiona Gunn, Greene King's Marketing Director, said, "Further growth on last year's spending would mean a great boost for the UK economy. Beyond showing how much Brits enjoy the festive period, these findings indicate that consumers are much more confident in their personal finances than in recent years."

According to a survey by HospitalityGEM, 59% of Christmas work parties and 50% of festive dinner bookings are made 3 months before Christmas. 69% of festive work celebrations are held in restaurants with the average spend per person between £30 and £45.

Steven Pike, managing Director of HospitalityGEM said, "Christmas is a make or break time for operators as guests are expecting one of the most memorable and amazing hospitality experiences of the year."

With over 145 years experience supplying restaurants, pubs, bars, hotels, B&Bs and all other venues in the catering and hospitality industry, Stephenson's catering equipment suppliers have seen more than a fair share of Christmas celebrations through the years. Our range has been especially chosen to meet the needs of our customers.
